

METHODISTS SLAP "DEFENSE TEST DAY" IN VOTE

'M'Graw 'Not So Good' Says Pirates' Owner

DREYFUS IS CAUSTIC IN TALK TODAY

Goes to Washington to Insist Landis "Do His Full Duty"

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 3.—Retracting his previous statement that he believed there were "others in the background" who knew all about baseball's latest scandal, Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pittsburgh Nationals, left for Washington today with the expressed intention of suggesting that Commissioner Landis reopen his investigation. "I am going down to repeat all I said yesterday, to which some persons appear to have taken exception and if anybody wants to start anything with me, I'll be there to give them all the satisfaction they want," said the Pittsburgh magnate.

Dreyfuss Still Sore.
Manager McGraw of the New York club has been quoted as taking exception to some of his remarks and to have said that I was still sore about the defeat of the Pirates in 1921," continued the club owner. "If all that happened in 1921 had been exposed, Mr. McGraw might not look very good. The old saying about 'people in glass houses' may apply in this case. Mr. McGraw should be the last person ever to refer to 1921. But I am not about to get into any argument with him. He is not in my class."

"If this thing is not cleared up properly and to the entire satisfaction of the public, by bringing every guilty man to justice—and there must be more than two involved—I will be in favor of eliminating the world's series, for a time at least, as a growing menace to the best interests of the game," said Mr. Dreyfuss. "The series is being made into too much of a big circus or show and in view of the present trend of things, is a growing menace."

Seeks Complete Probe.
"I want to suggest to Commissioner Landis what I said yesterday should be done—probe the thing to the bottom and expose any and all other guilty persons who may have been involved in the attempted bribery," said Mr. Dreyfuss.
"It is absurd to say that O'Donnell and Dolan were the only ones involved. As far as I can learn from players who know him, O'Donnell is only an observation of him, O'Connell is only a big boy and probably did not know what he was doing. He was only doing what he had been told to do. There were others in the background who knew all about the plot and they ought to be exposed. Only in that way can baseball be properly protected and come out of the investigation with credit to itself."

Dawes Spoke to Biggest Audience of Campaign

Dawes Special En Route to Fort Wayne, Ind., Sedalia, Mo., Oct. 3.—Encouraged by the reception given him last night in Kansas City, Charles G. Dawes, republican nominee for vice president, planned today to continue his attack on the LaFollette independent candidacy during a swing through Indiana with a night meeting arranged at Fort Wayne.

Four rear platform appearances had been scheduled for Mr. Dawes in the Hoosier state—Terre Haute, Brazil, Crawfordsville and LaFayette—but as on yesterday during the trip to Kansas City, several other stops probably will be made.

Mr. Dawes in Kansas City, last night, spoke to the largest audience he has had since his speaking campaign began. Convention Hall, where the meeting was held, one of the country's largest auditoriums, was crowded to capacity.
The attack on the LaFollette candidacy formed the theme of Mr. Dawes' address.

Davis Cancelled Three Addresses in Missouri

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 3.—John W. Davis, democratic presidential nominee, has cancelled his speaking engagements for Kansas City, Oct. 15; Springfield, Mo., Oct. 16 and Wichita, Kas., Oct. 17. This announcement was made by W. T. Kemper, democratic national committeeman from Missouri.

The national committeeman said Mr. Davis had decided to spend the time allotted for the cancelled dates campaigning in Illinois.

Nelson Woman Pays Her First Visit to Dixon in Dozen Years

Misses Amy and Jessie Hubbard of Nelson were shopping in Dixon yesterday. It was the first time in twelve years that Miss Jessie Hubbard had been in Dixon and she noted remarkable changes.

FRANKLIN MAN HELD ON BLUE SKY LAW CASE

Lee Dierdorff Accused of Selling Securities in Violation of It.
BULLETIN.
A message received at 1:30 this afternoon from Sheriff Elliott C. Risley at St. Paul, Minn., indicated that Lee Dierdorff, formerly of Franklin Grove, had been placed under arrest, and that he was making an effort to evade being brought back to Illinois. A hearing has been set for Tuesday of next week, according to Sheriff Risley's message.

(Telegraph Special Service.)
Springfield, Oct. 3.—Governor Len Small has issued a requisition for the return of Lee H. Dierdorff, under arrest in Minneapolis, and wanted in Illinois on charges of violating the Illinois Securities law. It is charged that Dierdorff sold to John Lohmeyer at Franklin Grove on June 19, 1920, thirty shares of stock of Dierdorff-Rose Company, a Montana corporation, which has not qualified its securities under the Illinois securities law.

Dierdorff, who formerly resided at Franklin Grove, was indicted by the Lee Co. September grand jury on a charge of violating the Illinois securities law. At the time he was living in Minneapolis and was arrested at that place upon request of Sheriff Elliott C. Risley. Dierdorff is said to have demanded requisition papers for his return to Illinois and was released. The Lee county sheriff secured the necessary papers and went to Minneapolis yesterday afternoon to arrest Dierdorff and bring him back to Dixon for trial.

It was alleged that Dierdorff had sold securities to John Lohmeyer, a retired farmer of Franklin Grove and later became affiliated with the firm of Dierdorff-Rose Company and while on a visit at Franklin Grove, sold more securities in the Montana firm.

Radical Attack on God Subject of His Sermon
Prentiss Hovey Case, pastor of the Presbyterian church of this city, whose series of Sunday evening addresses upon Radicalism have attracted much attention, is to continue that series of sermons by considering at the evening service Sunday, "The Radical Attack upon God."

In many respects this sermon will be the most startling in the truths presented and their implication of any that have been yet delivered.

The Young Peoples' choir, under the leadership of Mrs. Potter, and the orchestra, directed by Prof. Smith, will give a splendid musical program.

HIGH SCHOOL TEAM WILL OPEN SEASON HERE ON SATURDAY

Coach Bowers Forced to Rebuild Almost His Entire Team.

Coach A. C. Bowers of the high school has a list of about 50 candidates on hand for positions on the football squad this fall and from this number find that there is a wealth of promising material available to build up a strong team. Three teams were at work at the newly equipped north side athletic field last evening, doing their best to get the team which will oppose the Belvidere eleven in the opening game of the season on the home grounds tomorrow afternoon.

Last fall's graduating class took practically all of the mainstays out of the team, who had been outstanding stars in two years. This season there are very few of the old guard out and Coach Bowers has found it necessary to construct practically an entirely new team. However, from the large list of candidates who have reported and are drilling hard several nights during the week, he expects to be able to turn out a strong line and back field against Belvidere tomorrow.

Belvidere Here Tomorrow.
Belvidere is coming to Dixon tomorrow confident of another victory in their current raising game of the season. Last year Belvidere defeated Dixon at Belvidere by a score of 13 to 6 and from advance reports the members of the team are confident of victory again Saturday.

Ryneason, main stay at quarter back, tore a ligament in his left leg last evening during practice and is the first cripple to report for message this season. Ryneis is the one veteran upon whom considerable depends and it is hoped that he will be able to take part in at least part of tomorrow's tilt.

Of the list of 40 men who have reported this season, Coach Bowers has selected the following members who will participate in the opening game: Tomorrow's Players.
Centers—Weinman and Kerst.
Ends—Coss, Shawger, Reagan and Raymond.

Tackles—Bondi, Groth, F. Keller, L. Miller.
Guards—L. Prescott, C. Messers, S. Prescott, Marks, Belcher.

Half Backs—G. McNeil, McReynolds, O'Malley, Keyes, Slothower, Full Backs—W. Miller, Johnson.
Quarter Backs—Ryneason, D. McNeil, Krug.

According to advance reports, Coach Smith of Belvidere will draw from the following for his eleven: Backfield—Brown, Phil, Willis, Goodrich, Lander, D. Hawk.
Ends—Burroughs, E. Hawks, Turner, Wenzel.

Tackles—Carney, White, Downs.
Guards—Schaeffer, Munger and Downs.
Center—Van Epps.

The game will be called promptly at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon. Furr of Illinois will referee with Anderson of Illinois as umpire and Sherwood Dixon as head linesman.

Osteopaths Held Here. Meeting Here Yesterday
The Rockford district Osteopathic Association met yesterday in Dixon at the city hall and had a very interesting and instructive meeting.

Dr. Carpenter, who is president of the osteopathic college in Chicago, talked on "Diseases of the Heart." Dr. McGregor, surgeon and teacher of diagnosis at the Chicago college, held a clinic, examining patients brought in by the local osteopaths. Dr. Hardy of Galena read a paper on "The Bates System of Treating the Eyes."

Officers for the year were elected as follows:
President—Dr. Hardy of Galena.
Vice President—Dr. Chas. Medaris of Rockford.
Secretary-Treasurer—Dr. Stohl of Rockford.

The next meeting will be held at Rockford the first Thursday in January.

LOCAL GRAIN MARKET TAKES A JUMP TODAY

Three Cent Advance Follows Activity in Chicago Mart.

LOCAL PRICES UP
Influenced by the increased activity in grain on the Chicago market yesterday, the Dixon grain markets show a marked advance this morning, oats jumping from 42 cents to 45 cents and corn jumping from $1.02 to $1.05.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Oct. 3.—Immense profit taking sales more than wiped out new advances which took place today in the value of wheat. After reaching as high as 1.53 1/2 for May delivery the wheat market was forced down to below 1.50 for May. Wheat closed unsettled at 1 1/2 to 1 1/4 under yesterday's finish with May at 1.49 1/2 to 1.50.

Reports that seedling of the domestic 1925 winter wheat crop was progressing rapidly on enlarged acreage were something of a factor in the selling which pulled down wheat values. Advances were also at hand denying that the German harvest was a failure.

The fact that the July delivery of wheat representing the 1925 crop was selling at above 1.40 a bushel was pointed out as something practically unheard of heretofore at this season of the year. Many shrewd traders were also acting on opinions that after the sharp advances of late something of a reaction was inevitable.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Oct. 3.—With new foreign buying on a big scale, plainly evident, all grain scored fresh advances today, the markets making many new top records for the season. World supply figures were said to show $4,600,000 bus. wheat less available than a month ago.

Rye and oats were conspicuous for the liveliest jump in prices, but all deliveries of wheat as well as of rye together with May oats smashed over the season's previous high levels. Be fore the initial rush of general commission houses buying, showed any signs of a let up, rye was up 5 cents a bushel, oats 3 cents, wheat 2 1/4 cents and corn 2 1/2.

Attended Picnic Mendota Izaak Waltonians Thurs.

Robert Hallenbeck of this city represented the Dixon Izaak Waltonians at a picnic and outing held at Snyder's park near Mendota yesterday afternoon. Waltonians from LaSalle county with their families were present in large numbers and a most interesting program furnished entertainment both in the afternoon and evening.

City Repairs Roads to H. S. Athletic Ground

The city street department has hauled several loads of cinders on West Water street, filling up holes and putting the street in a drivable condition for the opening of the high school football season. The road leading off of West Everett street has also been graded making an ideal entrance to the field.

Three Negro Slayers Doomed to Die Today

Baton Rouge, La., Oct. 3.—Governor Fugua has declined to reprieve Freeman Coleman, Willie Washington and Booker Boone, negroes sentenced to hang this afternoon at Jena, La., for the murder of Sheriff Rents of Jackson Parish on Aug. 22.

Robbers Steal All Guns in Westville City Jail

Westville, Ill., Oct. 3.—Robbers entered the police station here last night and made their escape with about fifteen guns and revolvers, a score of "black jacks" and a large supply of cartridges.

Local Views Will be Exhibited at State Exposition in City

Several fine enlargements of views taken in Dixon and vicinity are on exhibition in the Chamber of Commerce window. These, with others which are in the process of enlargement at the Hintz studio, are to be entered in the art exhibit held in connection with the Illinois Products exposition at Chicago Oct. 9 to 18 inclusive.

Some of the large pictures were selected from hundreds submitted about a year ago when a committee of artists picked 100 views of Illinois beauty spots at the state university at Champaign. Seven of the hundred views selected were taken in the vicinity of Dixon and these will be entered at the Chicago art exhibit with many others.

BELOIT FAIRIES TO BRING STRONG TEAM TO LEGIONS

Former Dixon Player to Lead His Team Here for Hard Battle

Sunday will be observed as Dalton Day at the Brown Field when the Dixon Legion football team will meet Maurice Dalton's reorganized Beloit Fairies. It is expected that this game will bring one of the strongest teams to be seen here this season on the local field. Dalton, who was of a great deal of assistance to the local Legion during the past two seasons, has taken over the coaching reins of the Fairies this season and this will mark their season opening. Many players who have been seen on the local gridiron as members of Beloit clubs in former years will be back again Sunday. Dalton will appear in uniform and play the back field, working at quarter and fullback positions.

Riordan With Fairies?
Rumors have been current for several days that "Whitey" Riordan of Freeport, who was unable to be present at practice sessions and was dropped from the Legion list, had signed with the Fairies, "Dutch" Whipple and other stars of the former Elgin Legion were also reported to have been signed by Dalton, but in the line-up of his crew which the Beloit coach forwarded to Manager Eddie Jones, none of these names appear.

Duhm Has Quit Team
The local fans will regret to learn of the loss from the backfield of "Ching" Duhm of Sterling, who has gone to California to make his home. This regrettable piece of news is tempered, however, with the announcement that George Moore, of Rochelle, veteran member of the Dixon line, will be back in uniform and will work against Beloit Sunday. Moore has sufficiently recovered from his recent operation to be able to report for practice, which he has done regularly this week.

Coach Risley announced today that players not reporting for the regular practice would not be permitted to play Sunday and violations of the rules laid down at the opening of the season would be enforced to the letter. Olson, who will be back at center Sunday, Downs and Whitcomb are nursing injuries sustained in last Sunday's tilt with the Rock Island Navajoes but will probably be able to participate in some of the contest with the Fairies.

Beloit Fans Coming
Coach Dalton in his letter to Manager Jones states that the Fairies will arrive here between 12 and 1 o'clock Sunday noon, coming in an auto to caravan, accompanied by a dozen cars containing fans from Beloit and several more from Monroe, one member of the team being from that place. Beloit will line up as follows:

Centers—Cunningham, Hatch, McCaffrey, Guards—Both, Ackerman, Hayes, Tackles—Ewars, Van Gilder, Coons, McArgle, Ends—Demorecky, Wiebel, Erickson, Scholl, Quarterbacks—Finnegan, Dalton, Halfbacks—Everson, Phillips, Paschica, Shea, Williams, Fullbacks—Van Kuren, Gardner, Dalton.

Dixon People Attend Sauer Kraut Festival

UNANIMOUS IN OPPOSITION TO SUCH "DISPLAY"

Former Dixon Paston and Wife Given Purses by Conference

(Telegraph Special Service.)
Sterling, Ill., Oct. 3.—After accepting the invitation of Elgin that the 1925 conference of Rock River District of the M. E. church meet in that city, the conference this morning went on record as opposed to any further observance of National Defense Test Day.

Contrary to the opinion of leaders of the conference, the motion to condemn "mobilization day," which was presented as an amendment to the report of the committee on Public Policy as submitted yesterday morning, met no opposition in the business session of the conference today.

The report of the special committee appointed to consider the proposed amendment, as adopted by the conference, was that "We are unalterably opposed to the observance of the day." The report says: "It does not secure the end of security and peace which our nation seeks to reach," is misinterpreted by other nations and our own youth, and fails to inspire a spirit of "faith and good will in the world."

Asked to Support Denoon.
The conference was asked today to support the candidacy of Ex-Gov. Charles D. Denoon for U. S. Senator, by Maj. F. E. Ebert of Chicago, who said that Denoon's record showed him to be for law enforcement, and who added that the former governor's opponents had not pledged themselves to full implication of the laws against liquor, while Mr. Denoon had. He said that Denoon had pledged himself to 100 per cent enforcement of all liquor laws.

Freeport Methodists and business men swarmed the city today with a big brass band in their campaign to secure the 1926 convention.

Purse for Rev. Stone.
The conference voted a purse of $25 each to Rev. and Mrs. Fred D. Stone, formerly of Dixon, in recognition of their fine work in the Chicago Western District this past year.

Against Defense Day.
The most spirited debate of the session came yesterday when Dr. E. F. Little of Evanston recommended that a decided stand be taken by the conference against mobilization or Defense day, urging that paragraph be inserted in the public policy committee's report that "We are not in militate's report with Mobilization Day and sympathize with Mobilization Day and respectfully urge the government not to make the event an annual custom."

Dr. Little declared that Defense day was merely a gesture, and did not have anything to do with the training of young men to bear arms. He said that the observance merely was a suggestion of a preparation for war, and was misunderstood across the waters as a threat. It is veritably shaking your fist in the eyes of the world, perhaps not with intent, but nevertheless puts up in the eyes of other nations "having a chip on our shoulder."

There were a dozen or more who jumped to their feet to voice opposition to the viewpoint of Dr. Little. Rev. Hammit of DeKalb was one of the staunch supporters of the Defense day observance, declaring that he had spent 18 months in the army service and had been in position to see the crying need of preparation for defense. Also with a service record, opposed any action of the conference against the Defense day observance.

Rev. J. H. Williams of Franklin Park, Chicago, declared that if this conference went on record as opposing Defense day, it would be setting its opinion up against that of General Pershing. "If get peace, we have to be ready for war," said Rev. Williams, at which declaration many of the ministers showed that they were considerably exercised.

Suicide of Army Officer is Theory of Defense in Murder Trial in Tacoma

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 3.—The defense of Roland H. Pothier, now on trial in the United States District Court here on a charge of murder as the result of the death of Major Alexander P. Cronkite from gunshot wounds received while on a practice march at Camp Lewis in October 1918, will be based on expert testimony that Major Cronkite's wounds was self-inflicted, the defense indicated as the trial was resumed this morning. Decision to introduce testimony to show the wound was self-inflicted was said to have been prompted by the testimony of physicians yesterday. The physicians who attended Major Cronkite after he was shot gave conflicting testimony as to whether or not the clothing of the wounded officer contained powder burns.

E. R. B. Class Held Enjoyable Meeting

The E. R. B. Class of St. Paul's Lutheran Sunday school held its regular monthly meeting last evening at the home of Mrs. Julia Hubbard. There were twenty-three members present and seven visitors. After the business session a number of selections were rendered on the Victrola. Delightful refreshments were served during the social hour, the hostesses being Mrs. Julia Hubbard, Mrs. E. Senneff, Mrs. H. Schmidt, Jr., and Mrs. C. Jensen. Next month's meeting will be held at the church.

Enjoyable Day with Prizes at Club

The Ladies' Days at the Dixon Country club this summer have proven most interesting and enjoyable and Wednesday proved such a delightful day that the attendance at the club was very good. The picnic luncheon served at noon was most appetizing. Mrs. Charles Leake offered an incentive to the players a handsome prize, a vase. Mrs. H. U. Bardwell was successful in winning it, making the low score. On this day the President's trophy was also awarded, Mrs. Tim Sullivan winning the lovely silver pitcher.

Menus for a Family

Tested by SISTER MARY

Breakfast—Stewed dried apricots, codfish balls, milk toast, cocoa, coffee.
Luncheon—Potato and cheese soup, whole wheat bread and butter, apple charlotte, milk, tea.

Dinner—Totato bisque, baked haddock, scalloped potatoes, fried peppers, cabbage-apple and celery salad, steamed graham pudding, milk, coffee, hot rolls, butter, honey, oatmeal bread for children.

Dried apricots should be washed through many waters and soaked overnight in cold water to more than cover. This water should be drained off and the fruit should be simmered in boiling water "to cover" until tender. Of course, if it's more convenient you can "soak" the apricots for six or eight hours during the day and summer them for two hours while you are getting dinner. But dried apricots must be allowed to stand in water for several hours to remove the preparation used to prevent discoloration during drying.

Pota and Cheese Soup.
Two cups milk, 1 small onion, 1 cup mashed potato, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon paprika, 4 tablespoons grated cheese.

Peel and slice onions and scald with milk. Strain to remove onion. Add mashed potato and salt and pepper to milk. Melt butter and stir in flour. Add hot milk mixture slowly, stirring constantly. Cook five minutes. Add cheese and keep hot over stove until cheese is melted.

Apple Charlotte.
Three cups thinly sliced apples, one cup sugar, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, currant jelly, thin slices bread.

Pare, core and slice apples. Put a little water in saucepan, add apples, cover and cook until tender. Add sugar and butter and cook a few minutes longer, stirring constantly. Remove crumbs from bread and spread both sides lightly with butter. Line the bottom and sides of a brick-shaped pan with bread, sprinkle with cinnamon and cover with a layer of prepared apples. Spread apples with jelly and continue layer for layer until all is used. Cover with buttered bread and bake in a hot oven until brown. Turn out on a platter and slice to serve.

Fried Peppers.

Four green sweet peppers, 6 tablespoons grated cheese, 6 tablespoons bread crumbs from soft part of loaf, 1 teaspoon minced onion, 1/2 teaspoon salt, milk, 1 egg, dried bread crumbs, 1 cup stewed tomatoes.

Cut slice from stem end of peppers, remove seeds and white fiber and parboil five minutes. Rub off thin skin. Mix cheese, onion, bread crumbs and salt with enough milk to hold mixture together. Fill peppers with mixture. Roll in dried crumbs, dip in egg slightly beaten with 1 tablespoon cold water, roll again in crumbs and fry in a frying pan. Serve on a platter surrounded with stewed tomatoes.

Ladies Aid Held Election Officers

The Ladies' Aid society of St. Paul's Lutheran church held a well attended meeting at the church yesterday fifty-five members partaking of the picnic dinner at noon, served by members of the losing side in a recent membership campaign. During the business session afterward, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Mrs. Otto Beier.
Vice President—Mrs. James Boyer.
Secretary—Mrs. Nettie Cookley.
Treasurer—Mrs. Austin George.
Press Correspondent—Mrs. W. E. White.

Plans for the coming year's work were outlined.

Dinner Honored Pastor's Birthday

Yesterday, one of the most beautiful autumn days of the year, was the birthday anniversary of Rev. Prentiss Hovey Case, pastor of the Presbyterian church.

Last evening Mrs. Case entertained in her husband's honor at dinner, the guests, who were the members of the official board of the church, numbering twenty-one.

An elaborate course dinner was served, richly tinted autumn flowers used in decorating, featuring the marigold, and the dainty place cards also were in these shades.

Mrs. Case was assisted in serving by her two daughters, Misses Dorothy and Lucile Case, and Mrs. Frank Edwards.

Rev. Case extended the felicitations of all present on his natal day, and one of the most charming of the greetings accorded him was the original poem, "A Birthday Toast to Dr. Case," written by Miss Jean Hitchcock.

The guests at the dinner paid Dr. Case a pretty courtesy when they presented him with their best wishes and a beautiful reading lamp. The genial Doctor was quite at a loss for words in which to express his appreciation for a few moments, but soon recovered from his happy surprise and heartily thanked his friends.

The guests departed after a delightful evening wishing Rev. Case many happy returns of the day.

LOOK OUT FOR SELF POISONING

Neglect of the liver results in self poisoning! Not so quickly perhaps, but just as surely as if you drank poison out of a bottle. If your liver is not doing its work of helping digestion, eliminating waste from the bowels and purifying the blood, you will always be troubled with sick headaches, nausea, biliousness, bad breath, gas, sour stomach, or constipation.

Chance and tone your liver! Put your system in condition so you feel your very best again! Try just a spoonful of Dr. H. S. Thacher's excellent Liver and Blood Syrup after the next few meals and notice the quick improvement in the way you eat, sleep, look and feel—the return of strength, vigor and energy. You will be completely satisfied; otherwise there will be no cost. Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup is sold and recommended by Public Drug & Food Co., and all other leading druggists.—Adv.

Improved Maytown Farm Sold for $187 Per Acre

Maytown—Mr. and Mrs. William Fitzgerald have returned to Chicago after an over Sunday visit at the Thomas McGovern home.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Spohn were Amboy business callers on Monday. Andrew Spohn recently purchased the farm of Joseph Leffman containing 120 acres at a consideration of $187.50 per acre. This is considered cheap for a farm so well improved.

P. H. Hennessey of Dixon was here Sunday visiting at the John Friel home.

James McCormick was an Amboy business caller Saturday.

Frank Murphy and L. Carrington were Amboy business callers Saturday.

Farmers have been picking their seed corn, taking advantage of the warm days.

Two slight frosts this week in this neighborhood but neither have done much damage.

The large graders are working this week on the state road west of St. Patrick's church grading the road and getting it ready for gravel.

Miss Frances Montavon submitted to a second operation on her eye on Monday at St. Joseph's hospital in Chicago. She is getting along very well at present.

There will be a card party and dance on Tuesday evening at St. Patrick's hall. Good music and a good time.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Montavon returned from Chicago Tuesday.

Ray Montavon motored to Aurora Sunday.

Miss Mary Clinton of Ohio was here Sunday evening to attend the forty hours.

James Murphy and daughter Anna, were Amboy business callers Saturday.

Mrs. E. Chamberlain returned from Dixon Tuesday where she had been for several days taking care of her niece who has been ill with inflammatory rheumatism.

Miss Delphine Faivre has returned from DeKalb where she had spent the summer with her sister, Mrs. James Montavon.

A great many are availing themselves of the opportunity of the dollar corn by shelling this week.

To prevent injury to small trout in removing them from hooks, one should wet his hands.

I AM CLEAN

One reason for my beauty
By Edna Wallace Hopper

This is to the millions of women who wish to know how I have kept my youth and beauty after 35 years as a stage star. And how at a grandmother's age I manage to look like a girl.

On things is this: I never use soap and water on my face. Soap removes just the surface dirt, and that has nothing to do with the skin. Lucile Lantelme, the famous Parisian beauty, told me how she kept her skin so absolutely clean. Then I went to her experts and secured the same method.

Since then the method has come into world-wide use, but only through beauty experts. The results were so marvelous that all of them charged high prices for the product. Some charged $3, some $5, for the formula, so only the few know how much it costs.

Now I am placing this formula at every woman's call. I have named it my Facial Youth. It contains no animal, no vegetable fats, so the skin cannot absorb it. It simply penetrates the pores to the depths, then departs. All the grime, all the dead skin and clogging matter comes out with it.

Wash your face in the best way you know, then apply my Facial Youth. You will be amazed at the extra grime and clogging matter which comes out with it.

This is the first step in fine complexion—an absolutely clean skin. This method is the only way to get it. Once you know what it means you will never go without it.

I have placed this formula with all druggists, all toilet counters. The price is 75c despite the fact that others charge ten times as much.

You need my Facial Youth. It is impossible, they tell me, to look your best without it. It is the only facial cleanser which really cleans.

Write me for my Beauty Book and I'll send with it something else to please you. Edna Wallace Hopper, 536 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.—Adv.

WHITE RACE MENACED.

Eight causes of racial hatred are discussed
Prof. William McDougall of Harvard University. Here they are:

One—Expansion of population.
Two—Sex jealousy.
Three—The assertion or expression of a claim of superiority, associated with race pride.

Four—The claim of political ascendancy.
Five—Differences of religious belief.
Six—Economic rivalry, or exploitations of nations leading to slavery.
Seven—Nationalism (patriotism).
Eight—Desire to defend a national culture against disintegration.

It stands to reason that there wouldn't be any radical antagonism to speak of, if every race had for each of its individual members as much wealth, freedom, intelligence and geographical desirability (including land abundance and fertility) as the individual of other races.

So-called racial antagonism is a highbrow name for jealousy. The supremacy of the white race is menaced because the white race has cornered more than its numerical share of humanity's natural resources, intelligence and desirable climate.

Higher scientists of the white race are worried about the world's constantly increasing population. The more population, the more people to envy white possessions.

Asiatic yellow and brown races and the black race in Africa are multiplying much faster than whites. The white man, incidentally, is increasing the numerical strength of his rivals by sending millions of dollars and medical brains to curb disease which for centuries has destroyed a large part of the colored races' over-population.

Whether the white race, in this humanitarian way, is sowing the seeds of its own destruction, time will show.

Even more important than the life-saving is that we—in our desire for foreign markets—are raising rival races to a standard of living beyond what can be supplied by their own acreage and natural resources.

However, nature's law of the survival of the fittest is not going to be repealed.

MAN AGAINST HORSE.

Another indignity was heaped upon the horse the other day. And it happened in London, where that noble beast, is still highly honored. A man beat a horse in a six-day race. Each of the contestants trotted for ten hours a day. On the last day the horse was taken out, exhausted, before the time was up, while the man was still jogging along steadily. The crowning humiliation was that the man was nearly 60 years old.

This is by no means the first instance of the kind. It has been proved many a time that although the horse has the advantage for short distances, a good human runner can beat him in a long race. Either the man's build enables him to function more efficiently, when allowed to set his own pace, or else his intelligence and will give him an advantage over brutes even in physical contest.

Both are put to shame, however, by the tireless gas engine, which can cover far more ground in one day than man and horse did in a week, and keep on doing it day after day.
Which means that mechanically, man and all the other animals are far from perfect.
They lack locomotive efficiency because they can only progress by a series of awkward up and down movements, instead of the smooth turning of wheels and shafts.

Birds and fishes are better suited to easy locomotion, and man wisely imitates both in the airplane.

THE DESTROYER.

"The kicking is coming from the agitator, who seems to enjoy being unhappy." This is one sentence in a trade bulletin contrasting distress elsewhere in the world with the generally prosperous conditions in the United States.

While nothing is truer than that the agitator starts kicking he does not kick because he enjoys being unhappy. His delight is in making other people unhappy. There is no profit for him in contented people. There is no limit to the profit he can extract from those he makes miserable. The agitator is in the class of the quack doctor who convinces healthy human beings that they have serious physical ailments in order that he may export money from them on pretense of curing them.

Various are the arts and wiles by which the agitator defrauds his victims. Never is there uncertainty about the efforts of his machinations. He finds them reasonably happy and contented and he leaves them in the state of misery that he has made them believe they had occupied. Then they must make a new start and laboriously climb to the position that once was theirs. When they become prosperous again the agitator will return and repeat the performance. Like the medical quack, he holds himself as a savior of those who in truth need only good sense to save them from him.

He is the most ignoble type in the land and the most dangerous to the public well-being.

NO ARTIFICIAL RAIN.

Once more prosaic, matter-of-fact science blasts the hope of regulating rainfall by artificial means. The weather bureau asserts that for practical purposes rain making per-order is still a long way beyond sight.

Once more the rain maker must defer assumption of control over the clouds. From time immemorial imaginative individuals have pictured themselves in the role of Joye, releasing the floods from above or damming them back. The latest effort in this direction was along scientific lines and, it is claimed, produced results.

But those who view the subject from the practical standpoint and who are in position to know what they are talking about rate the electrically charged sand method as holding no real promise and relegate it to the limbo reserved for such efforts. Nature still clings to some of her prerogatives—including control of rainfall.

WEIGHT.

Ice cream should be sold by weight instead of by quart, says a resolution by the N.
J. Weights and Measures Association. This, they point out, would checkmate the trickster who pumps air into ice cream to swell its size, which is something new in applied science.

It would also be a lot fairer to sell eggs by weight instead of by the dozen.

"Heigh ho, hi hum lo!" he sang.

Along came Tweekanoose the Gnome who liked to keep the babies awake.
"Heigh ho, hi hum lo!" he sang.
"I am so happy! Tum de tum lo hi hum lo!"

"What are you so happy about?"
asked Twelve Toes the Sorcerer, who was one of his best friends.

"I'm so happy," sang Tweekanoose,
"because the Sand Man has lost his sleepy sand. 'You've got part of it, thanks to my smartness, and Tricky Trizo has part of it, and the rest is in Squeekie Land. The Sand Man will never find it now.'"

"Don't be so sure about that," said Twelve Toes gloomily. "I had my share of the sleepy sand in a flower pot with a rose planted in it.
But the Sand Man came with the Twins and said a charm. 'Tummy Jimmies' just like that. The first thing I knew the sand jumped right out of the flower pot into the Sand Man's sack."

"Toadstools and fuzzy worms!"
cried Tweekanoose crossly. And with out another word he rushed to the mountain where Tricky Trizo lived.
"Quick!" he cried to that person.
"Give me all the magic sand I left for you to keep for me. I'm afraid the Sand Man and the Twins will get it."

"Too late by three hours, forty minutes and six seconds," said Tricky. "The Sand Man was here and said a charm. I had the magic sand in a box and he said 'Tummy Jimmies' just like that and away it went."

"Fleabites and mosquitoes!" cried
Tweekanoose still more crossly.
And without another word he rushed to Squeekie Land to see what had happened there.

It was just the same. The Squeekies told how the Sand Man and the Twins had fooled him completely and the Squeekies Lord High Counsellor told how they had fooled him completely and run off with a whole sackful of sand.

"All my trouble for nothing," said Tweekanoose gloomily. "I haven't a friend I can trust. I'll have to go to Crookabone and ask his advice."
Crookabone was the Gnome king who lived under the ground, and to him went Tweekanoose with his troubles.

"The Sand Man and the Twins have the magic sand again," he said.
"and the first thing you know all the kiddies will get to sleep tonight."
Crookabone smiled a sour smile.

"They're not asleep yet," said he.
"I have a plan. I can stop the Sand Man and the Twins before they get a hundred steps farther."

So he called a hundred of his workers together.
"Go out and get a thousand cakes of soap," he commanded, "and pave the road to Jum Jum Land before the Sand Man gets there."

Then he called a hundred more of his workers.

"Go and get a thousand watering pots and sprinkle the road to Jum Jum Land as soon as the others get through with it," he commanded.

"Now, sir!" said he to Tweekanoose.
"If you cannot do the rest you do, don't deserve your name."

"Hee hee hee!" cried Tweekanoose gleefully. "Never fear. I'll get the magic sleepy sand again as sure as the cow jumped over the moon."

LETTER FROM JAMES CONDON TO SALLY ATHERTON,
CONTINUED

Don't jump at the conclusion, Sally, that I have been making love to a regular married woman. Mabel Carter has not lived with her husband for more than two years. It is one of the greatest tragedies I ever heard that parted them. She tells me that so heartless and unhappy was she that she never really cared whether she was divorced or not, until she fell in love with me.

She had made up her mind before that that she would have nothing more to do with men. One had not only bruised her soul, but had nearly annihilated her body.

I wish you could have seen her when she told me her story, Sally.
She is the sweetest, the prettiest little doll of a woman you can possibly imagine—something you want to take in your arms and kiss her tears away.
She is exactly the opposite of the great, splendid example of femininity that you are. I always felt coming and boyish and immature when I was with you, Sally, but the moment I saw Mabel I wanted to take her in my arms and help her to bear her burdens, if not take them all off her shoulders.

I am quite sure I have already done this.

I wonder if you will remember her, Sally? There was a lot in the papers about her when you and Sam first came here, and she was very badly used, both by the court and the newspapers. She was not at all to blame that her husband was unreasonably jealous of her. He shot that man and tried to kill her, simply because, through a chain of unfortunate circumstances, the man had brought her home from downtown one cold, drizzly night in his limousine.

The murder trial was a sensational one, and the defense tried to make out that the murdered man and Mabel were lovers. But just to look at her, Sally, you would know that could not be.

I will be glad if Mr. Prescott does come over here and take the plant over, for I am sure you will come with him, and then you will be such a help to rehabilitate Mabel in the eyes of the world. Poor girl, she says her own sex have simply stretched her on the rack of torture, and that she has not a woman friend. I have told her that you are not that kind of a woman, Sally, and that I know you will love her as soon as you have seen her.

I am almost sure that Mr. Hamilton is no better. In fact, I think he grows a little weaker every day, and although as his private secretary I am virtually manager here, and have been ever since he was taken ill, I will be very glad if someone else comes in to take some of the responsibility and hard work away from me. Mabel complains that I am working much too hard, and that I never have a day off except Sunday to be with her. When we go anywhere of free!

Constipation lays you wide open to other diseases—relieve it with Kellogg's Bran

Don't take chances with constipation! This terrible ailment can send poisons into your system which may lead to serious diseases. The longer those poisons accumulate, the more dangerous they become. Begin at once to free your system from them.

Eat Kellogg's Bran. If eaten regularly, it is guaranteed to relieve the most chronic cases of constipation, or your grocer will return your money. It is nature's own way to make the intestine function naturally and regularly—for Kellogg's Bran acts exactly as nature acts. It makes forever unnecessary the use of habit-forming drugs and pills.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, has proved successful when all else has failed. This is because Kellogg's is ALL bran. Doctors everywhere agree that only ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective—they recommend Kellogg's Bran.

Eat at least two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases with every meal. You will like it. You will enjoy the delicious nut-like flavor—the exclusive Kellogg flavor.

Eat Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Try it in wonderful bran muffins, bread, griddle cakes and other recipes given on every package.

Kellogg's Bran is the road back to health. It is made in Battle Creek and is served in individual packages at the leading hotels and clubs everywhere. Ask for it at your restaurant.
It is sold by all grocers.

READY TO PLAYPerfect Plans to Begin Big Series in Capital City.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Oct. 3.—Members of the Washington Senators and New York Giants, ignoring to all outward appearances the cloud of scandal that has been thrust over the scene, today geared their machines for the opening world's series game tomorrow before probably the most notable gathering that has ever witnessed baseball's blue ribbon event.

The Senators were slated for their final drill this morning with the Giants applying finishing touches to

Players' share 7,142.27
Each club's share 2,380.75

their practice in the afternoon. And fervent fans were staging their eleventh hour scramble for tickets that have been in unprecedented demand ever since the Senators became pennant winners for the first time since they entered the big league baseball forty years ago.

Walter Johnson will pitch the opening game. Opposed to him probably will be Hughie McQuillan of the Giants hurling corps although Manager McGraw may switch to his southpaw sharp shooter Art Nehf.

Frisch Will Play
Washington will start its fight for the championship with the same lineup that carried the club to the American League top. With Johnson opposed to them, the Giants are expected to take the field with Terry, a youngster and left handed batter, on first; Kelly, regular first sacker, in center field and Hach Wilson, another newcomer, in left field in place of Irish Meusel. Captain Frisch's finger has recovered sufficiently to assure his return to the keystone post. Heinie Groh, regular third baseman, still is suffering a twisted knee and Freddy Lindstrom,

Seven Big Ten Teams
Ready for Big Games

Chicago, Oct. 3.—Seven Western Conference football teams completed preparations today for their opening games tomorrow.

Purdue was at Columbus for a game with Ohio State and Illinois arrived at Lincoln where Nebraska awaited. Both contests vied in holding the center of interest with each team in fair shape primed for the conflict. The Illinois backfield suffered from the loss of McIlwain, Dancy and Kinsey, crippled but competent substitutes were available.

Chicago planned a defense for the aerial attack expected from Missouri. Northwestern's hope of beating South Dakota were raised by the return of Captain Wienecke.

The Michigan Wolverines ended stiff practice on the eve of their engagement with Miami while Minnesota prepared for North Dakota. Coach Jack Ryan of Wisconsin selected 28 players for use against Ames tomorrow.

Iowa faced the prospect of meeting the Oklahoma Southwestern Teachers. Today's practice at Indiana decided the Indiana eleven to bear the brunt against De Pauw.

Sox Even Up Series in Wild Games on South Side

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Oct. 3.—The battle for the baseball supremacy of Chicago between the Chicago Americans and National Leaguers stood at 1 all today as the teams took the field for the third game of the annual city series. Vic Aldridge for the Cubs and Ted Blankenship for the White Sox were likely pitching selections.

The White Sox evened up by defeating the Cubs 12-7 in the second game yesterday.

Sakr-el-Bahr laughed, and he looked now in earnest. He set his foot upon the "rowers" stretchers and leaned forward and down his elbow upon his raised knee so that his face was close to Lionel's. "For your deliverance?" said he. "God's life! Lionel, your mind was one that could take in naught at your own self. 'Tis that has made a villain of you. Your deliverance! God's wounds! Is there one but yourself whose deliverance I might desire? Look you, I want you to swim to Sir Asad's ship and bear him word of my presence here of this galease and that Rosamund is aboard it. 'Tis for her that I am concerned, and so little for you that, should you chance to be drowned in the attempt, my only regret will be that the message was not delivered. Will you undertake that swim? It is your one sole chance short of death itself of escaping from the rower's bench. Will you do?"

"But how?" demanded Lionel, still mistrusting him.

"Will you go?" his brother insisted.

"Afford me the means and I will," was the answer.

"Very well," Sakr-el-Bahr leaned nearer still. "Naturally, it will be opposed by all who are watching us that I am goading you to desperation. Act, then, your part. Up and attempt to strike me. Then, when I return the blow—and I shall strike heavily, that no make-believe may be suspected—collapse on your oar, pretending to swoon. Leave the rest to me. Now," he added sharply, and, on the word, rose with a fine laugh of derision, as if to take his departure.

But Lionel was quick to follow his instructions. He leaped up in his bonds, and, reaching out as far as they would permit him, he struck Sakr-el-Bahr heavily upon the face. On his side, too, there was to be no make-believe apparent. That done, he sank down with a clank of shackles to the bench again, whilst every one of his fellow slaves that faced his way looked on with fearful eyes.

Sakr-el-Bahr was seen to reel under the blow, and instantly there was a commotion on board. Biskaine leaped to his feet with a half cry of astonishment; even Asad's eyes kindled with interest at so unusual a sight as that of a galley slave attacking a corsair. Then, with a snarl of anger, the snarl of an enraged beast almost, Sakr-el-Bahr's great arm was swung aloft and his fist descended like a hammer upon Lionel's head.

Lionel sank forward under the blow, his senses swimming. Sakr-el-Bahr's arm swung up a second time.

"Thou dog!" he roared, and then checked, perceiving that Lionel appeared to have swooned.

He turned and bellowed for Vigittello and his mates in a voice that was hoarse with passion. Vigittello came at a run, a couple of his men at his heels.

"Unshackle me this corsair and heave it overboard," was the harsh order. "Let that serve as an example to the others. Let them learn thus the price of mutiny in their lousy ranks. To it, I say."

Away sped a man for hammer and chisel. He returned with them once. Four sharp metallic blows rang out, and Lionel was dragged forth from his place to the gangway deck. Here he revived, and screamed for mercy as though he were to be drowned in earnest.

Biskaine chuckled under the awning. Asad looked on approvingly. Rosamund drew back, shuddering, choking and near to fainting from sheer horror.

She saw Lionel borne struggling in the arms of the boatswain's mate to the starboard quarter and flung over the side with no more compunction or care than had he been so much rubbish. She heard the final scream of terror with which he vanished, the splash of his fall, and then, in the ensuing silence, a laugh of Sakr-el-Bahr.

For a spell she stood there with horror and loathing of that renegade corsair in her soul. Her mind was bewildered and confused. She sought to restore order in it, that she might consider this fresh deed of his; this act of wanton cruelty and fratricide. And all that she could gather was the firm conviction that hitherto he had cheated her; he had lied when he swore that his aim was to effect her deliverance. It was not in such a nature to know a gentle mood of penitence for a wrong done. What might be his purpose she could not yet perceive, but that it was an evil one she never doubted, for no purpose of his could be aught but evil. So overwrought was she now that she forgot all Lionel's sins.

and found her heart filled with compassion for him, hurled in that brutal fashion to his death.

And then, quite suddenly, a shout rang out from the forecastle.

"He is swimming!"

Sakr-el-Bahr had been prepared for the chance of this.

"Where? Where?" he cried, and sprang to the bulwarks.

"Yonder!"

A man was pointing. Others had joined him and were peering through the gathering gloom at the moving object that was Lionel's head and the faintly visible swirl of water about it which indicated that he swam.

"Out to sea!" cried Sakr-el-Bahr. "He'll not swim far in any case. But we will shorten his road for him."

He snatched a crossbow from the rack about the mainmast, fitted a shaft to it and took aim.

On the point of loosing the bolt he paused.

"Marzak!" he called. "Here, thou prince of marksmen, is a butt for thee!"

From the poopdeck, whence, with his father, he too was watching the swimmer's head, which at every moment became more faint in the falling light, Marzak looked with cold disdain upon his challenger, making no reply. A titter ran through the crew.

"Come now," cried Sakr-el-Bahr.

"Take up thy bow!"

"If thou delayest much longer," put in Asad, "he will be beyond thine aim. Already he is scarcely visible."

"The more difficult a butt, then," answered Sakr-el-Bahr, who was but delaying to gain time. "The keener test. A hundred Phillips, Marzak, that thou'lt not hit me that head in three shots, and that I'll sink him at the first! Will take the wager?"

"The unbeliever is forever peeping forth from thee," was Marzak's dignified reply. "Games of chance are forbidden by the Prophet."

"Make haste, man!" cried Asad. "Already I can scarce discern him. Loose thy quarrel!"

"Pooh," was the disdainful answer. "A fair mark still for such an eye as mine. I never miss—not even in the dark."

"Vain boaster," said Marzak.

"Am I so?" Sakr-el-Bahr loosed his shaft at last into the gloom, and peered after it, following its flight, which was wide of the direction of the swimmer's head.

"A hit!" he cried brazenly. "He's gone!"

"I think I see him still," said one. "Thine eyes deceive thee in this light. No man was ever known to swim with an arrow through his brain."

"Aye," put in Jasper, who stood behind Sakr-el-Bahr. "He has vanished."

"'Tis too dark to see," said Vigittello.

And then Asad turned from the vessel's side.

"Well, well, shot or drowned, he's gone," he said, and there the matter ended.

Sakr-el-Bahr replaced the crossbow in the rack, and came slowly up to the poop.

In the gloom he found himself confronted by Rosamund's white face between the two dusky countenances of his Nubians. She drew back before him as he approached, and he, intent upon imparting his news to her, followed her within the poop house, and bade Abiad bring lights.

When these had been kindled they faced each other, and he perceived her profound agitation and guessed the cause of it. Suddenly she broke into speech.

"You beast! You devil!" she panted. "God will punish you! I shall spend my every breath in praying Him to punish you as you deserve. You murderer! You hound! And I, like a poor simpleton, was heeding your false words. I was believing your sincere in your repentence of the wrong you have done me. But now you have shown me—"

"How have I hurt you in what I have done to Lionel?" he cut in, a little amazed by so much vehemence.

"Hurt me!" she cried, and, on the words, grew cold and calm again with very scorn. "I thank God it is beyond your power to hurt me. And I thank you for correcting my foolish misconception of you, my belief in your pitiful pretense that it was your aim to save me. I would not accept salvation at your murderous hands. Though, indeed, I shall not be put to it. Rather," she pursued, a little wildly now in her deep mortification, "are you like to sacrifice me to your own vile ends, whatever they may be. But I shall thwart you, heaven helping me. Be sure I shall not want courage for that."

And, with a shuddering moan, she covered her face and stood swaying there before him.

He looked on with a faint, bitter smile, understanding her mood just as he understood her dark threat of thwarting him.

New York

New York—Every evening I see a man who sells whisky. He isn't a bootlegger. But he wears a white vest and an enormous gold chain is attached to his watch.

He is a whisky salesman, who on government permit, sells liquor to druggists who dispense it on doctors' prescriptions.

He is far removed from the type of wine salesman of pre-prohibition days. In those times the men who sold liquor to the trade went from bar to bar each night, buying "drinks for the house" and making friends for themselves and the products with the nightly revellers. It was a difficult task and many a man lost his health in the service.

This modern whisky salesman is an artist on the telephone. He gets most of his orders without ever calling in person on a customer. He is blustery of manner, has a red face, but I am told, never has tasted the liquor he sells.

Somehow he makes a pathetic comparison with the polished wine salesman of yesterday who went to high class bars and ordered champagne for all guests. He was a romantic figure.

Plasterers and bricklayers now have little or nothing on facial calomins. The Independent Beauty Parlor Workers' Union is New York's latest organization.

The girls who redeccorate a face, are out for more money and shorter hours—and larger tips, if possible.

Joseph Kilboy, 11 found a chamolite ring containing three diamond rings. They were returned to the owner and Joe received $200 reward.

He immediately bought shoes for six brothers and sisters. Complete outfits of clothing came next. If there is enough left he wants a bicycle.

Joe's daddy is a waiter. It still pays to be honest—even in New York.

Johnson is Making an Active Campaign

Freeport Journal-Standard — William R. Johnson of this city, the Republican candidate for Congress from this Congressional district was home over Sunday. He spent all of last week in Lee, Ogle and Whiteside counties, and is surprised to hear some criticism of him because he was not here last week to attend the Republican Judicial convention. He says he was not a delegate to that convention and as no one called the matter to his attention he did not give it any thought. He said that he is making an earnest effort to cover the district and meet as many of the voters as he possibly can. As regards the resolutions passed at the Judicial convention relative to Mr. Johnson's Republicanism, the Journal-Standard does not believe that any one who knows

Mr. Johnson question his Republicanism. In this city and county he has worked for the interest of the Republican ticket ever since his boyhood days and in many campaigns of later years he has gone all over the state in the interest of the Republican ticket.

Mr. Johnson made a square, manly and honorable fight for the Republican nomination for Congress, paid all his own expenses and is under no obligations to any man in a financial way, for his nomination, nor will he be for his election. Mr. Johnson has had years of experience in Washington in various departments of the government service and feels that he has had the experience and the acquaintance to fittingly represent this Congressional district in Congress and while he hopes to represent the whole people of the district, regardless as to their political views, he has always been a Republican and will be with his party on party matters as they come before Congress.

MEDICINE HABIT

BRADFORD, England—The medicine bottle habit threatens the downfall of the human race. Dr. A. E. Barnes, noted English physician, declared in a lecture here. The increase in the number of "nervous breakdowns" among people of civilized nations is due to the monotony of the mechanical age, he said.

NEW PARISIAN STYLE

Paris—A woman of the Parisian aristocracy has appeared on the boulevards with an evening gown on which her coat of arms is produced in jewels on a white satin background. The stones had to be pierced for this purpose, and though their value was decreased, the dress as it stands is valued at many thousands of dollars.

PLAN WORLD AIRWAY
London—Plans for a round-the-world airway, with wireless, light-houses and illuminated landing fields at regular intervals along the route, have been drawn up by August Hooper, well known London aviation expert. The plan takes into consideration the experiences of the recent round-the-world flyers.

There are 60 motor vehicles manufacturers and 1900 dealers in Germany.

CALVIN COOLIDGE THE BIOGRAPHY OF A PRESIDENT

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS

Calvin Coolidge, thirtieth president of the United States, was born on July 4, 1872, in Plymouth, Vermont. Coolidge attended Amherst and graduated with honors. He married, in 1906, Grace Goodhue, a teacher. After passing the bar examination he entered politics and has held many offices. While governor he helped settle the Boston police strike. He became vice president in 1920 and president in 1923 on the death of President Harding. His son died during the summer of 1924.

CHAPTER XI

How He Appears to the Observer

Most of the preceding chapters of this biography have been devoted to a study of the "official" side of President Calvin Coolidge, thirtieth president of the United States. Those who know Coolidge well, or have a chance to observe him at a very close range, know there is a side to his nature which is far from "cold." It is the so-called human interest side of the man Calvin Coolidge, and it is this side that his neighbors in Washington get a glimpse of every once in a while.

Calvin Coolidge has a sense of humor. He doesn't allow it to express itself very often; but it is there and shows itself occasionally.

There is one story they tell about him, rather far removed from the serious side of his nature. It reveals his sense of humor of his own peculiar, dry variety.

Early one morning the president was taking his usual walk about the streets of Washington. He slipped out of the White House, and accompanied by a reporter and several secret service men, started to walk up "F" street.

He had gone but a few blocks when he noticed a horseback-rider approaching from the opposite direction.

"See that man?" the president is said to have remarked to his companion, "he cost me a lot of money."

"How's that?" inquired the surprised reporter.

"Well," the president drawled in his New England way, "that's— (mentioning the man's name.) He owns a store that sells women's fixins."

The well advertised uncommunicativeness of the president, at another time, provoked an incident that also illustrates well his sense of humor.

He was attending a dinner in Washington with Mrs. Coolidge. Next to him was seated one of

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Adv.

AFTER ILLNESS GET STRONG AGAIN WITH COD LIVER OIL

Every schoolboy as well as every grandmother, knows that Cod Liver Oil is a great strength creator and body builder—the best on earth. But sick folks won't take the nasty, tasting, horrible smelling, stomach setting oil and who can blame them? And thanks to science—they don't have to—for now at any drug store in America you can get 60 McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets for 60 cents and before you have taken one box will know why all the Doctors praise Cod Liver Oil and tell you that it is chock full of vitamins that build you up, make you strong and wonderfully aid digestion.

If you want to feel fit and fine all the time put your faith in McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets—the original and genuine—as easy to take as candy—and money back if they don't help you.

Ask Rowland's Drug Store or any real druggist about them. Mrs. T. Cahy, West Orange, N. J., writes: "I have been using McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets and they have been helping me wonderfully."—Adv.

There have been charges made by writers against him, the most vicious being not long ago in a monthly periodical to the effect that Coolidge is evasive in his answers to newspaper correspondents. That is not entirely true. There are times when he is so, but these times are not in the majority.

Twice a week correspondents gather in the White House to be received by Coolidge. At a signal—and he is rarely late for an appointment, and then only when the fault is not his—the writers troop in, to his inner office.

They always find him standing at his desk, holding in his hand the questions that the correspondents have sent in ahead. Questions to be asked the president are always written. He reads them all slowly and carefully, then one by one, he gives his answers, his opinions. Many times he will say that the matter in question has been referred to a department and that disposition of the matter rests with that department.

On matters of international importance, he manages to give the correspondents enough to write about, though, of course, he is never quoted. This has long been a custom at the White House. The president never is quoted.

The conferences do not last long. A lengthy one is fifteen minutes. Usually they are eight or ten minutes.

President Harding used to joke with the writers once in a while. This probably was due more or less to his being a newspaper man himself. But Coolidge rarely does. He knows most of "the boys," however, and when the written questions are finished, and someone asks him something in addition, he always listens carefully and frames an answer with well chosen, carefully selected words.

Every president is photographed frequently. Hardly a day passes but that he is asked to step outside and pose with groups of distinguished visitors. This practice must become a deadly bore, but the president doesn't flinch. It's a part of the job, and however distasteful it must become he always goes through smiling.

Another dinner-table story, fitting in well with the one told above, is recorded. A woman rushed up to Mrs. Coolidge, all excited.

"Oh, Mrs. Coolidge," she cried, "I'm so excited. I'm to have the honor of sitting beside your husband at the dinner tomorrow night at Mrs. —"

"I'm sorry for you," laughed Mrs.

Coolidge, "for you'll have to do all the talking."

President Coolidge, despite his reticence, has been known to enjoy a good chat and smoke—outside of his home. Back in the Boston days, when he lived at the Adams house, and went home to Northampton but twice a week, he had a knack of making friends with a few persons of a lower social and sometimes mental status than himself. It was these conversations that he enjoyed, and they must have been partly responsible for his shrewd knowledge of the mass of people which he has developed.

He didn't acquire the habit of smoking until rather late in life, comparatively speaking. But there were times when he, at the Adams House, would smoke and discuss topics of the day.

There is one thing about Coolidge an observer cannot help notice. That is his peculiar, whimsical smile. His face remains serious, but his lips twist or rather roll, like the waves of the ocean, and his eyes twinkle until the observer feels that his inaudible must be howling in glee, while his exterior remains grim and cold as New England in winter.

With the president, brevity is not forced. It never has been.

Over the mantel of his home in Northampton there hangs a four-line verse, in a frame which illustrates the man:

A wise old owl sat on an oak,
The more he saw, the less he spoke;
The less he spoke, the more he heard.

Why can't we be like that old bird?
Coolidge is like him, and no amount of persuasion by well-meaning political friends who have urged him to dramatize himself for the consumption of the public, can change him. (More Next Issue)

DAVIS ATTACKS MELLON.
Frederick, Md., Oct. 1.—John W. Davis, in beginning his final drive for the presidency made a direct attack here today on Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury and his defense of the Aluminum Company of America.

"DEAD" MAN IN JAIL
Indianapolis, Ind.—Keepers of the city jail were amazed to find that one of their prisoners, eating and drinking the jail food like all the other prisoners, was in reality a dead man. John W. Temple, 40, who was declared legally dead after being missing from his home in Danville, Ky., for more than 20 years, was identified at the jail by a cousin living in Indianapolis.

Pull-Over Or Coat Style?

The celebrated query as to whether a zebra is a white animal with black stripes or a black animal with white stripes has its counterpart in the question—Which is correct; the pull-over sweater or the coat style? The answer is "Yes!" Into such things style does not obtrude at all. It is an affair of preference, not propriety. Both models are worn by the best-dressed men and, if you are wise, you will have one of each for a pleasant change-off.

No accessory of men's dress has shown so remarkable a development from unsightliness into attractiveness. Who does not remember the lumpy, clumsy sweater of former years which enveloped, but did not embellish? It had no lines. It did not fit. It was neither a coat nor a waistcoat. It was a makeshift. It was machine-knitted of thick yarns full of dropped stitches and loose ends. It was drab and colorless.

Compare the sweater—in England they politely call it "jumper"—of to-day with that of yesterday. It is trim and fits like a well-cut coat. It is smart, because hand-knit. It is resplendent with gay color, whether made in Scotland, Ireland or the United States. It has contributed a welcome touch of color and cheerfulness to men's dress, brightening it up astonishingly.

The Scotch sweater illustrated here is only one among hundreds, literally, hundreds, of such garments and, in the most expensive grades, no two are made alike, thus insuring individuality and exclusiveness. Checks, small or large, are prominent in sweaters this season and so, too, are splash, zig-zag, mosaic, Jacquard, Indian and "Fair Isle" designs in which seemingly irreconcilable colors are made to blend harmoniously.

Among the preferred colors are blue, blue-gray, Lovat, leather, biscuit, canary and so on, either in plain colors or combinations, frequently with wool stockings to match. Sometimes the bodies are vari-colored, whilst the sleeves are plain-colored. Light, medium or heavy weights are available, as you wish.

"THE AFFAIR AT FLOWER ACRES"

By Carolyn Wells

A MYSTERY story such as only Carolyn Wells can write. A story that is more than a story—a masterpiece of dramatic literature!

Action, suspense, heart interest, conflict, thrills—all the elements of the most enthralling kind of mystery serial lie in "The Affair at Flower Acres."

With ROOSEVELT IN AFRICA

by W. Robert Foran © 1924 NEA Service Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Robert Foran, newspaper correspondent, accompanied the Theodore Roosevelt expedition into Africa in 1909. They arrive at Mombasa, the gateway to British East Africa, and then make the long railroad journey to their first camp in the same crowded Kapit Plaines. After several other trips they invade the Quana Xyero elephant country and meet with more good sport. The Roosevelt party is royally received at Entebbe, and Roosevelt visits the boy David Chiva, king of Uganda. Now Foran and other members of the party prepare for a long journey through Uganda, the Congo and the Sudan to Egypt.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

There was much detail work to be accomplished in those crowded days in connection with my long journey through the Uganda country and down the Nile.

The fitting out of such an expedition required considerable thought and organization. Every single eventuality had to be considered, and provided for. Food had to be carried for the native porters, for it is impossible to depend upon food supplies being obtainable en route.

Every additional load of food carried entailed the engaging of another porter, and each porter extra to the original estimate entailed a recalculation of the food rations. In addition to these worries, I had to make provision against any sudden change of plan made by the Roosevelt expedition, which might entail a longer period of time spent on safari and, therefore, more porters' food required.

I had been feeling sick for some days, to add to my worries. Just before I had left Nairobi I had had the misfortune to get a bad spill while riding a strange horse. He bolted with me, with the bit between his teeth, just as I was mounting, and before I was properly in the saddle. Before I could stop him, we had taken a wild gallop across country, and had struck a five-strand wire fence at full speed just after jumping an open ditch.

We had both turned two complete somersaults over the fence, and had been stunned for a few moments. The horse had fallen on top of me. I was badly shaken, but was lucky not to be seriously injured. The day after my arrival at Entebbe with Roosevelt, a strange and painful swelling had appeared near my groin. It caused me great suffering and made it difficult to walk. But, despite the strong advice of my doctor, I had determined to go through with the trip and not turn back at this interesting stage.

As by now I found it was too painful to attempt to walk or ride my bicycle, I arranged for a machila—which is a hammock slung on a pole, and carried by four porters on their shoulders. It was another complication in my intricate calculations for food supplies, but it was essential.

On Dec. 22, Colonel Roosevelt, Kermit and Knowles started off shortly after dawn to attempt to secure a group of the rare swamp-hill, the Sitatunga. It is only to be found in the swamps of Uganda, and it is very rarely shot. A few had been reported to be living in the swamps near Kampala. Kermit lived up to his reputation, gained in British East Africa, and killed a splendid specimen of the male.

Knowles assured me—and he is a great hunter himself—that it was an exceptionally fine head and that Kermit was most lucky to secure it. The Colonel did not see one at all, although he worked hard enough for a kill in the arid and leech-infested swamps during most of that morning and in the great heat. They were only able to get the one specimen, and were never fortunate enough to complete their group.

There was a large and well-attended "at home" at Mr. Knowles' house on the afternoon of the Sitatunga hunt, but the Roosevelts returned so late that they were only just in time to change their clothes for this party. They had to forego their lunch. There were two native bands playing on the lawn, one a drum-and-life band and the other a brass band. The bandmen were all Baganda boys and the Sedan to Egypt.

The McCormick-Deering Corn Picker Gets More Corn Than the Average Hand Husker

THIS efficient machine plays no favorite—it picks up and husks practically every ear and nubbin. It shells little or more of the corn, and delivers the clean-husked ears into the wagon alongside of the picker. With a McCormick-Deering Corn Picker, two men can easily do the work of from five to seven hand huskers—without the drudgery common to hand picking.

It is no wonder that farmers have bought thousands of McCormick-Deering Corn Pickers. They would have bought more, had they been able to get delivery. This year the demand will be even greater. Therefore, you must order your picker now if you want it to be delivered to you in time for this season's work. Don't delay—come in at once and let us point out to you the many mechanical features that make the McCormick-Deering Corn Picker outclass hand picking, in speed, ease and efficiency.

There is no Doubt About the Success of the McCormick-Deering Corn Picker. Come in and let us Prove This Statement to You.
